Industry – Printing

Introduction

With approximately 73,000 firms and sales of $210 billion annually, the printing industry is a significant contributor to the overall U.S. economy. Printing firms vary in size from a single employee firms to more than thirty firms employing above 10,000 employees. 50% of the firms employ more than 4 employees. Some of the types of printing firms in the marketplace are: General commercial printer, specialty printer, screen printer, publication printer, book printer, etc.

Printing firms have been going through some massive changes in the last two decades due primarily to technological advances. Here are some key changes that have affected the printing industry recently:

- Digital printing
- Digital link to customers
- CTP workflow
- Elimination of film
- E-commerce
- Variable data printing

These advances have changed the landscape of the printing industry and continue to affect it. The printing industry is anticipating many further challenges:

- Some pre-press production moves in-house due to more powerful computers
- Non-print alternatives such as Adobe Acrobat formats eliminate print volume
- Print advertising is in decline as advertising moves online

Printing firms are looking at being more efficient and innovative to succeed in this changing marketplace. Sales compensation plans are one way they use to align their sales processes with their corporate goals.
